

Quantum System to Go Live on October 2, 2019

On February 21st Executive Sponsors Dawn Rhodes, Chief Business and Finance Officer and Vice President, Peter Murray, Chief Information Officer and Vice President, and Scott Bitner, Senior Associate Vice President and Deputy CFO announced that the revised Go Live date for the Quantum System is October 2, 2019.

The timeline for the new system, which replaces eUMB Financials and RAVEN, has been extended to allow us time to optimize its utilization. The required systems integrations, development of new, contemporary reporting capabilities, and the completion of other critical project requirements will be more fully resolved by October 2nd. Extending the timeline also provides for additional testing and more time to prepare University staff for working with the Quantum System.

The project team continues to press on. In upcoming weeks the team will roll out presentations including an Overview of Chart of Accounts and Quantum Reporting. This spring the team will offer a series of presentations that will educate users on frequently used business processes – including changes. Additionally, several rounds of system testing are slated for late spring/early summer. Over summer, the team will share more specifics on Quantum roles and on requesting those roles. User training will begin to roll out in mid-August, six weeks prior to Go Live.
